When you are registered as a student with the University of Wales, you will receive an email welcome message containing your University student ID number and your login details for myWales, the university's online Global Campus.

The London College of Business does not keep a record of students' passwords for the myWales site. If you are doubtful about login details, please use the forgotten password facility. You should use the email address that you supplied to LCB when registering for the course.

When you go to the University's website www.wales.ac.uk you will see the same button also at the top right hand corner. Clicking on it takes you to the login page.
